THE EUROPEAN MYTH OF JUDEO-CHRISTIAN VALUES

BY REBECCA WENMOTH

After millennia's of systemic antisemitism, why is Europe suddenly and firmly upholding its Judeo - as much as - Christian inheritance? Rebecca Wenmoth untangles this contradicting rationale, which seems to be revealing more exclusive than inclusive tendencies for the old, thus not ultimately wiser, continent...

JOURNALISM IN AN 'ILLIBERAL DEMOCRACY': INTERVIEW WITH ÁDÁM MAGYAR OF EURONEWS IN HUNGARY

BY KIMBERLEY MANNION

Being a journalist in Hungary is not easy. The clichéd but genuine missions of journalism - to speak truth to power, to write a balanced report of the first draft of history - are hard achieved in an 'illiberal democracy'. Ádám Magyar is a young journalist at Euronews based in Budapest. Interested in international relations and a keen writer, it seemed a natural profession to follow. Kimberley Mannion from The New Federalist spoke to him to find out what it is like to begin a journalism career in such a hostile climate.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS IN DENMARK AND THEIR STRUGGLES WITH DEBT

BY VĚRA DVOŘÁKOVÁ

Lockdowns are stressful. We're isolated from friends and family. We're worried about our future and livelihood. Dario, an Italian studying in Denmark, has one more worry to add to this ever growing list: debt. The money he owes is his Statens Uddannelsesstøtte (SU), a financial state support for students.
